

ras when warm, wet climatic conditions died, they accumulated on the surface. In cycles of decay, new growth, and burial to build up. Enormous pressure was applied, and gradually many of the air bubbles were reduced. In time the layers were transformed into a carbon that was present in the

Selecting text

Selecting graphics